The Race.
Race has been all the talk among the sporting gentry of this place during the past week. On Wednesday last, a large part of the population, old and young, male and female, congregated at the race track to witness the various trials of speed between the various teams of horses. The horses were arranged for that day. The first race was between Huntington's thoroughbred, seven and a half year old, and Belmont's seven year old. The race was won by Huntington's horse, but many were of the opinion that Belmont's horse was the better of the two. The next, and the crowning feature of the occasion, was the race of the same distance between Sam Broadfield's gelding and three year old mare. The horse being well known for their speed, the betting was quite animated and considerable money changed hands. The race was won by Broadfield's horse, but many were of the opinion that Belmont's horse was the better of the two. The race was won by Belmont's horse, but many were of the opinion that Broadfield's horse was the better of the two.
