The Christmas Tree.

The week before last long looked for any tree and found. The Christmas Tree at the school house in this city was a great success. The tree was displayed in the school building, there being scarcely standing room for the large crowd of people that was present. All necessary arrangements had been completed by the committee of arrangements long before the tree began to be visible at the school house. The tree itself was large and imposing and had evidently been selected with great care, by persons who knew just what was wanted.

It was handsomely decorated and the presents placed in such a way upon the tree as to show to the best possible advantage and as the display of toys, packages, etc., were large and many of them very valuable, the sight of it was well calculated to call forth the unbounded admiration and joy of the children of the school. It was also that of the older portion of the audience. A number of very interesting incidents occurred during the exhibition of the tree.
