ROBBERED OF PROPERTY
BY MORMON BISHOPS

Tragic Story of How Poor Woman and Rightful
Owner Was Turned Down by
Agents of Hierarchy

There is a short statement of facts, which will explain the case of a woman who was robbed of her property by Mormon bishops. The woman in question is Mrs. J. W. Smith, who lives in the town of Panguitch, Utah. She is a widow and has a young child. Her property was taken from her by the Mormon hierarchy, and she has been unable to recover it. The story is as follows: Mrs. Smith had a small farm and a few head of stock. She was a poor woman, but she was honest and hardworking. One day, she was visited by two Mormon bishops. They told her that they had a plan to buy her property, and they offered her a large sum of money. She was very poor, and she was tempted to accept their offer. However, she was advised by her friends to be careful. She decided to consult with a lawyer. The lawyer told her that the bishops' offer was illegal, and that she should not accept it. She refused their offer, and they became angry. They threatened to take her property by force, but she was too poor to fight them. She went to the court, but the judges were biased in favor of the bishops. She was unable to recover her property, and she has been living in poverty ever since.

COLE'S ORIGINAL HOT BLAST

THE HOT BLAST DRAFT BURNS THE COAL GAS

We can prove every word of the equipment.

The hot blast draft, used as it is in connection with the air-tight construction, discharges blast of air heated to more than 600 degrees over the surface of the coal. The blast of highly heated or thoroughly oxidized gas is not admitted from the upper surface of the fuel and it is shown in the store with sufficient force to create a flame to burn the mixture, whether the stove is running cold or on short down to the lowest point. The gas bill of all other stoves, which is wasted with all other stoves, is thus burned under perfect control at all times in Cole's Hot Blast.
