A Wonderful Toy.

Perhaps the most wonderful toy in the world is owned by a Brooklyn priest, who invested a fortune of $60,000 in it and built a theater to house it. The stage is a marvel of scenery and machinery that modern skill has devised, and the actors are models of the leading operatic stars of their living prototypes. The priest's marvelous Kirmess Concert is the most popular opera, and it is only necessary to press a button to set the whole marvelous machinery in motion. The actors make their entry on the stage and play their ridiculous parts to the exceptional pleasure, while a number of accomplished singers the vocal parts in the voices of the leading operatic stars.

An Island City.

Greater New York consists of forty-five boroughs; it might be called the 24-Inch City. Take the names of some of the largest—Manhattan Island, Long Island, Staten Island, Easter Island, City Island, Ellis Island, North Brother Island, Randall's Island, Blackwell's Island, Barnard's Island, Governors Island, Oyster Island and Coney Island. Many small ones in America may have large names. One inland island, near the Mississippi, says the local paper, is big enough to use thirteen river steamers.

Human Nature.

"Why is it," asked the curious guest, "that poor men usually give larger tips than rich ones?"

"Well, sah," said the waiter, who was something of a philosopher as well, "dere is one lie dey do git out o' me—dey don't expects nuthin' to find out he's po' an' dey don't want what nobody is fool enough to want—a reputation for the contrary."

Willing.

"Now," began the fellow-boarder, "take the life of your neighbor, for instance, Mr.—"

"I'd do it in a minute," interrupted the puzzled man. "If he kept on that way I'd take a chance on the rest of his life. But—actual murder is sure to be detected."

THE ASTOR WAY.

...Longer to Pioneer Them, Which S... Tonight His Headquarters.

The real estate dealer was reminiscing. "Some years ago," he said, "when I, later said one day to his head bookkeeper, 'I wish you to write out those 1,700 leases—including the documents—preparatory to renting the Astor properties for which they will be drawn and rented with rental rates 25 per cent. for the coming year.' The head bookkeeper, astonished, returned to protest. 'There has been no complaint, Mr. Astor,' he said, 'from any tenant as to the amount of rent charged. All are satisfied to pay present prices.'

"'This is a matter of pecuniary interest,' the founder replied, 'as well as present. Times are not ostensibly good and, now, and I do not think they will improve this year. I am not, however, making this reduction—or a policy through discontent. It will be a good business investment for me to retain each of my tenants, if possible. Intelligent men that business conditions during the coming year will force many persons to move into cheaper houses and data that they have been occupying for some time. I do not wish my tenants to move. I know that you are familiar with their ways. I am secretary with their needs, demands and methods of paying their rents. If they should move I should have to try to replace them with new tenants, whose desirability I have not tested. Besides, I should have to spend large sums in re-painting, building and arranging these various properties to suit the new tenants. By reducing rents I shall save a sufficient lot of money to more than offset the loss. Moreover, I am unwilling that it should be impossible for them to find as good, spacious shelter as I do myself. Naturally, having had their rents reduced, they will be glad to pay any reasonable increase that I may require that can possibly be avoided, and I shall save much money in that direction over previous years. Besides, I shall have the most element of retention that I can secure, and I shall assume accordingly. If on the contrary, I am required by tenants move out the amount of my losses would be considerable, which will find, if you compare my receipts at the end of all the year with those of similar properties owned by other persons who prefer no reduction, that mine is a profitable plan. When these tenants were into vacancies I squeezed figures, and unfortunately for the most tenants.'

"The bookkeeper learned a lesson in finance, the leases were drawn accordingly, and Astor did not lose a tenant."—New York Press.

BOYS WHO DID BIG THINGS.

Many of the World's Great Men Were Fame in Their Youth.

Some of the greatest achievements in the world have been made by youth, and it will always be so in human life. Napoleon, the great soldier of the world, was a shepherd, a poet and a dreamer before he was twenty, and a...ling at the age of eighteen. Alexander the Great, at the age of twenty-one, had conquered all his then known world, and before he was twenty-five he was dead. Julius Caesar, even in a childish way, watched the steam coming out of the kettle, and it is the new world of mechanical power made possible by the steam engine.

Caesar was master of Gaul before he was thirty-six. Richelieu was at the age of thirty-one after having composed what may perhaps be called is secret work. Napoleon was the most astonishing soldier of modern times, and before he was thirty-one he was the greatest commander of the world and master of France. Shelley wrote "Queen Mab" before he was twenty-one, and was a master of poetry before he was twenty-two.

Patrick Henry was only 29 when the revolutionary history of a new country before he was thirty and astonish the world by his oratory. Burke was twenty-six years old. At the age of twenty-four Hamilton had written "Federalist Papers," and Napoleon, when only twenty-six, was the world's greatest general. Webster was twenty-six when he had written "Bunker Hill Oration," which was one of the greatest orations ever spoken by man.

Disraeli, the great statesman, was a novelist at twenty-three. Byron was famous before he was twenty-five. Scott was famous before he was thirty-four. Tennyson was famous before he was twenty-five. Longfellow was famous before he was thirty. Bryant was famous before he was twenty-five. Lowell was famous before he was thirty. Whittier was famous before he was thirty-five. CONCRETE SHELL GRAVE.

They Don't Remain, but Lose Color After the Shedding.

The supply of soft crabs in the market is obtained by catching hard crabs and keeping them until they shed their shells.

For this purpose high rectangular floats, made of slats and planking, are employed, and there or four times every day the men on hand is examined. Crabs in the soft crab begin to harden and are removed without delay. They are put into shallow boxes of moist seaweed, here as in thirty-five dozen to a box, according to the size of the animals.

When the packing is done carefully the occupants may be kept alive from sixty to seventy hours after leaving the water.

Crabs have been shipped all the way from the Chesapeake to Canada, arriving at their destination in good condition. In summer, of course, ice is used.

But where soft crabs are concerned it is necessary that they shall reach the market quickly, because their new shells harden with great rapidity. At the end of twelve hours the shells are like parchment, and in three or four days the crab is as hard as ever—hence unfit for use in the form most highly approved by epicures.—New York Herald.
