WEISER IS DOING WELL, THANK YOU

SHORT RESUME OF IMPROVEMENTS IN THE BEST CITY IN IDAHO DURING 1903.

The Weiser did a fine improving business during 1903, did you possess one also, will do a considerable more during the year 1904, or the threshold of which we are standing.

Approximately, the improvements during the past year will foot up something more than $150,000. Put into our bailiwick money speak for itself by improvements, work on the same.

The New bridge and Weiser Irrigation district, which would foot up at least $50,000 more.

The outlook for next year is still more promising. A number of new brick buildings are uncomputable, on which work will be begun early in the spring. It would not be surprising if 1904 did not see a solid brick block on the north side of Idaho street, where now are frame buildings.

Following are the business houses constructed during the year: Schoel Annex, Kelly's Planing Mill, Broom Factory, Settler's Building, 1903, Bond's Planing Mill, Warehouse & Annex, S. A. Lockwood, H. C. Washington, J. W. Ayers, Christian Church, Fire Hall, Methodist Church, Methodist Parsonage.

Following on the enclosure and other improvements made during the year: W. B. Linden, Capt. A. W. Waters, Solar Leighton, M. L. Ivy, Dr. S. L. Storm, J. J. Fuller, A. Wichiser, Rev. Webb, C. D. Colgan, A. Shelly, Weber L. & L. Co., Mrs. Maggie Allen, Chas. Starks, John Vajdahelka, Robert Waldo, A. Hopper, Mr. Jarman, W. L. Anderson, J. W. Smith, C. W. Jones, H. A. Penrose, E. M. Day, F. P. Woodward, Bernard Hess, H. Petersen, Schoel cabin cottages, Triplow cottages, F. H. Stanton, G. W. Miller, John Rogers, L. Churchill, Miss Harper, Alex Johnson, C. M. Hinton, James Gilly, Mrs. M. R. Summersamp, S. F. Noland, Mary Mitchell, J. A. Summersamp, Mack Fallbrook Electric Light & Water Plant, and numerous others, which probably escaped the reporter in his search for accurate information regarding our future metropolis.

INDEPENDENCE OF WOMAN

Its True Significance

THE Cottrell Debating club met in full session. The subject of the day was written in bold letters which all could see—"The Emancipation of Women."

"Oh, for mercies sake!" ejaculated Senator Crawford, one of the purest of hearts, as he settled himself comfortably in his easy chair and prepared to take a little nap on the sly.

But the senator was not destined to get as much sleep as he expected, although he did make a sort of stumble while old Mrs. Wrinkle held forth for half an hour in a rambling way, first shifting to with a doubtful accent of the ancient woman of women and then introducing off on some pet reminiscence, asking of her own will the president managed to count her up and give the floor to Mrs. Cottrell, the hostess.

Miss Strongarm was short as to hair and long and, had a voice to match. Her voice was what is known as a female baritone, and she had a tendency to stage—partners—to suit. For there-mention of an hour she waxed long, plainly arose the windmills and the ancient woman of women and their speeches off on some pet reminiscence, asking of her own will the president managed to count her up and give the floor to Mrs. Cottrell, the hostess.

"Now, Miss Strongarm, you may proceed," said Mrs. Cottrell.

"Madam and gentlemen and ladies," she began, "the cry part I don't take any stock in. The emancipation of woman is all right, and I am in favor of it. But—"

"But," shouted Mrs. Cottrell, with an air of authority.

"But," continued Miss Strongarm firmly. "But a man can't wrench's own, and I'm not going to be. I'm not in favor of the strange woman."

"Strange woman," repeated Mrs. Cottrell, and she arose, drew herself to her full height, and she arose, drew herself to her full height, and she arose, drew herself to her full height

WHY SHOD BOARD BOLE.

A Washington dispatch has the following regarding the rejoining of W. E. Borah, of Boise, by Senator Heyburn, as one of his counsel, in the land-fraud suits in the United States senate: As soon as announcement was made in the city that Wm. E. Borah of Boise, Ida., had been selected as an attorney to represent Senator Fred Dubois of Utah at the impeachment trial of Judge Swayne, the fact that he is a son of the United States Senate, the members of the body put into motion the machinery which every senator possesses to obtain information concerning Mr. Borah, his standing in the community, and the reasons for his selection in this important case. All the facts concerning him are now before the members of the senate and they understand the situation thoroughly.

From a number of first hand sources it was ascertained that Mr. Borah is a splendid lawyer; a good debater; a man of high character; never a politician; always public spirited; a republican by conviction and a republican always. He is a man of family, and has a host of friends in Idaho, who, regardless of political affiliations, are proud of his success in life.

It is known here now that Mr. Borah was a strong republican leader in 1896 and 1898, but that he went back to the republican ranks in 1900. His republican leadership in 1902 was so pronounced that his election by the legislature, which every senator possesses to obtain information concerning Mr. Borah, his standing, his antecedents
