LETTER LEFT IN PUCATELLO.

Was Appreciated at Salt Lake, Continued He Has the Dread Disease.

That fatal typhoid or pneumonic fever bacteria has been conclusively established by bacteriologists of Salt Lake, says the Pocatello Tribune. The diagnosis of Dr. W. A. Wright, formerly assistant surgeon for the Union Pacific line, in Pocatello and later with the state board of health, has been found correct. Grubbs, while employed as a carpenter during the construction of the Cassia branch visited, also was suspected of being afflicted with the dread disease. Dentist Sanborn Wright made an accurate test and found him to be afflicted. He called in other physicians, one Dean being the Hospital and a bacteriological examination was made, resulting in his being sent to a leper hospital in San Francisco. A short time ago he left that institution and went to Salt Lake. Now that he was at large in that city he created a sensation. He was taken into custody and the Salt Lake Herald-Republican thus tells the story:

Sees the Germs.

Under his own eye, looking through the curved lenses of a powerful microscope in the office of the city health commissioner yesterday afternoon, H. H. Goble, lover, manipulation of the fangle of the bacteriologist was diverse with which he is identified. He studied the terrible germ destined to finish him from society and ultimately to claim his life with unseemly speed.

Dr. Hyde K. Lynch, city bacteriologist, assisted by Dr. Samuel C. Bland Paul, city health commissioner, had summoned the examination of blood cultures and smears of the spleen taken from the body of Grubbs. Prof. Dr. microscope outlined an isolated tuberculay germ and then colonies of them. While in the forenoon session at Pocatello, Dr. Lynch made many injury examinations, and his experience made the proof that should follow him conclusive.

Grubbs Co. Paul, Dr. C. C. Snyder, county physician, and Dr. W. R. Tyler Ronald Wilhelm, the internists and studied the patient. Grubbs refused to submit to the examination, and died blissfully. He had been studying color illustrations in Jackson's Bacteriology," a standard medical authority, of colubia of leprous germs and when the physicians arrived he said: "I am the physician myself, proposed to make examinations of his own case. That he looked through the microscope like a man well versed in leprosy was apparent to the physicians.

Is Self-Convicted.

"I want to thank you, gentlemen," said Grubbs as a dejected look spread over his countenance. "I am convinced now for the first time that I am actually afflicted with leprosy and will try to find some way to cure it. I did not appreciate from the San Francisco hospital. I will follow your instructions implicitly. May God reward you, and child."

Dave Has Leprous Daughter.

Technical discussion of the case performed by Dr. Lynch and Dr. Paul showed he has tuberculay leprosy, causing lesions. Another form, somewhat more, common is known as anesthetic leprosy because the portions of the body afflicted become insensible to pain. In his personal life Grubbs is pictured as the "foster brother" Dave, of leper, because the marriage of the Grubbs here headed to bring forth a lion-like expression about the eyebrows and eyes. Photographs of leper taken at Molokai of this type strongly resemble Grubbs.

E. B. Flynn, chief sanitary inspector of the city board of health, called at the office of Dr. Paul about 8 o'clock last night with a message for Grubbs. The leper bade the physicians good-bye and accompanied Flynn to the isolation hospital. Where there are two small pox patients and the county physician will look after him.

The Amber Industry.

The business of ambaltaire under could the nation has been for 1,000 a state monopoly in Prussia. The chief center of the industry is in the province of eastern Prussia. The gathering of the amber goes on theoughout the year, but it is most profitable at the time of the equinoctial storms. When the winds and the waves throw it before. After a storm the fishermen from the beach. They deposit the sand from the strand, where the women and children pick out the pieces of amber from among the seaweeds. The pieces are roughly resembling in size, color and form. The value of a piece of amber is exhaustively what it from the impression of plant or animal specimens. The prices of the pieces vary from about 12 cents to 75 cents, but may reach in 6000 or more. The price per pound runs from about $1.20 to $7.50. A very large piece sometimes attains the weight of eighty or seventy-five ounces. The color is most commonly the familiar yellow, but it may be reddish brown or essential green or yellow, and some pieces are quite white. The total yield is valued at $1,000,000 a year.—Harper's Weekly.

Long Arm of Coincidence.

An amusing story from the scientific comments a Philadelphian who recently had to pay three dollars for his wife's new illness of joint, inadvertently locked another married couple to spend the night owing to the fog. When the outsider was discovered it was decided to bend the fenders together firmly, rather than risk the expected goal-to-goal run in subsequent evening. The two men in whose two tickets were about two cubical feet of junk, and for in turn forcibly bended them over to a near neighbor, accounting the latter's shoulder into the safe to the play. Now, this is where the long arm of coincidence comes in. The unfortunate neighbor and his wife were the invited guests of the purveyor of the fenders. They thought it would be a pity to lose the chance of such a fine dramatic treat, and not knowing the real origin of the fenders, they made a new acquaintance like situations and used the two sets with the same bad result for their relatives.—Glasgow News.

"And the course met with the refusal time—and this may be the first time—that the disease was detected at such a stage of development. The most interesting detail if that could have been affected by the disease during the period that Grubbs was not aware of the affliction. However, investigations may be continued.

NOW FLOODS ARE PLAYING HAVOC

Are Homeless and Hundreds Have Been Reported Dead In Ohio and Indiana.

...ington—Mrs. Mary Hoffman, North Canton, Ohio, widely and Dejoinette—were instantly killed.

The message said that no estimate of loss of life was possible, but the carnage would be large.

Governor Cox tonight received a long distance message from Phalanx, six miles northeast of Dayton, saying that 25 bodies had been swept through Treat, in the west Miami river. The reports tend to verify the heavy loss of life at Signer, Shelby county, which was reported nearly wiped out by the flood, on the bottom lands of the Miami river. Many are believed to have been from Sidney.

The streets of Dayton are said to be full of head horses and other animals.

JACK DAVIS MAY BE ALIVE

Salt Lake, March 28.—A telegram from New York and signed "Dickinson Jack" Davis was received by Van de Steadman of this city today and if not a hoax indicates that he is alive and in need of money.

A few days ago telegrams were received here from southern California to the effect that Davis had been shot by Mexican federals for aiding the revolutionists.

The origin of the Dick that money was wanted is no doubt, Mr. Spalding is investigating. The telegram follows:

"Dick, I want you to wire me $200. Wire McAlpin hotel, New York City. Have copper gold mine named Aspect Lookdown. Near Mexico, producing. Am here making deal. Am here half interest in 4000 Anaconda mines. Need coin cash on draw."

Prairie Fire in Kansas.

Dodge City, March 28.—The worst prairie fire in Kansas in many years swept over Ford, Hodgeman, Gray, Scott and Finney counties Sunday and Monday night. The damage to property was great, but little stock was burned. The fire started in Finney county and went eastward, sweeping across north of Dodge, in Gray county. The same wind that drove the flames eastward with such fury left the city in response to appeals for help in fighting the flames.

Mexicans Kill American.

Nogales, March 28.—Gus Amerlein was killed and another wounded and many shooting non-combatants shot to death on the streets of Cananea yesterday afternoon when the terrific and rifle fire became terrific.

The Americans were not identified up to 2:30 when it was all considered bullets was not below the border, but the Mexican insurgents. Up to that time the battle had continued since early morning without abatement or any apparent advantage to attackers or defenders.

Damage in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, March 28.—A terrific rain and windstorm today did damage to the extent of $200,000. Five hours the rain fell in sheets and caused the steady into subways. Floors. The Lowerbasement floor 50 to above and a record. The wind swept over the city at Sixth and Cedar streets.

Many big coal conveyors were blown down and the big steel frames twisted into bits.

Yes, All the World Loves a Lover; Here Are a Royal Pair of Them

TWO happy young people indeed. You can see them like this the world over but what makes this picture interesting is the fact that this girl is one other than Princess Victoria Louise, only daughter of the German emperor, and the young man is her fiancee, Prince Ernst, August. They were engaged sensation in Carlsruhe on the day their announcement was announced. Their elopement himself and their sudden flight would seem to disprove the statement that the alliance was made for reasons of state and one for love. Prince Ernst is now Duke of Cumberland's only son. They are to marry.

TERRA HAUTE IS HIT HARD

Terre Haute, Ind., March 28.—Eighteen persons are known to have been killed, 250 suffer—or from—fire—tornado—Indianola injured, 275 homes are destroyed and other property damages, estimated at nearly a million dollars, was the toll of the tornado that devastated Terre Haute and vicinity Sunday night. Until night the officials in charge of the rescuing work say the list of dead will be increased as they clear away the debris of wrecked buildings.

Hundreds of homeless tonight are being cared for by charitable institutions and citizens while the weather district is being patrolled by company H, First regiment, Indiana National Guard, called here by Governor Marshall. The militia was ordered out early yesterday afternoon before, when the report of the night measures from Indianapolis.

Rob Killingsley's Fires.

Relief work yesterday showed that hundreds not everything they owned and their suffering was made more acute by the fires. The destruction which robbed their household and probably the greatest from the stricken district could have added; for it extinguished innumerable fires that would undoubtedly after the tornado had passed.

Milwaukee, March 28.—Elected because an attack of asthma made her too ahlaze to quit the plump duties of her former office, Miss Emma Kaiser today recovered a residue of grass raised for Milwaukee as a girl friend. After her return home she got letters from Dr. Jessen and shortly after-ward they became engaged.

RESOURCES FOR THE SIGNAL

ASKS SPORTSMEN TO HELP

Boise, March 28.—Game Warden Barker has launched a new policy with reference to county wardens that will be hailed by the people of the state with delight. The plan is to appoint deputies, with power to arrest and prosecute for violations of the game and game laws that the district would be good.

New Deputies Named.

A list of this organization, Warden Barker yesterday appointed 31 deputies in Kootenai county alone. Of these deputies 11 F. Dolan, J. W. Bailey, Charles Carney, Robert O. Hopkins, C. J. Rinehard, George O. Bryant, E. L. Scott, William Wade, W. A. Keller, indicted statement, A. Jessie, John Chambers, R. W. Simmons, A. Rhode, Maurice McGregor, E. N. Smith, William Warren, Lester Tremble and Joseph Sweeney are members of the St. Maries Rod & Gun club.

The other deputies named yesterday are E. F. Sukker, O. H. Williams, W. S. Cope, M. A. Kinsy, C. M. Chinn, H. H. Grant, J. A. Pickerton, A. W. Barfield, A. A. Mattson, J. M. Platt, A. T. Dawson and Albert Delaney are members of the Harrison Rod & Gun club.

Aid of Sportsmen Needed.

It is the warden's intention to follow out this policy in other sections of the state in which there is good fishing or hunting. He has reached the conclusion that it would be an utter impossibility for the entire state with deputies employed by the state. All the deputies the state could afford to hire, he says, would be but to one township in such a county as Kootenai. The intention is to throw this responsibility on the honest and

COUNTING THE LOSS AT OMAHA

Work Of Relief Under Way In Nebraska City—At Least 200 Dead and 500 Injured.

Omaha, March 28.—For the first time since the disastrous tornado at Omaha Sunday, the people of Omaha began today to count the cost, both in lives and dollars.

When a census was made it was apparently more appalling than those who had studied the result were willing to admit.

Not less than 200 lives were snuffed out within the vicinity of the city proper, and not less than 400 persons in surrounding towns lost their lives. Nearly 500 were injured, and many of these have died in local hospitals during the day.

The destruction was accentuated today when nearly three inches of snow fell over the stricken district, making entirely unbelievable the homes of many who had prepared to retain temporary homes in partially destroyed structures.

So far as rotary relief is concerned, conditions were perfect. Tenders of arms surrounding a million dollars were in the hands of city commissioners when the day ended. These offers came from nearly every section of the country and were made unconditionally.

Organize Relief Work.

The greatest work today was that of organizing a systematic relief bureau, with seven branch stations in the territory covered by the tornado. Three stations were in city autos miles long and those in charge of relief stations handed out materials as assistance in all cases who were able to assist they were to co-operate.

Patients Scarce.

Omaha, March 28.—Miss Daniels, the gift, and, there are children—one death together. Where soldiers die fishermen themselves, and no hope for good results from the innovation.

On the fishers' side Warden Barker is determined to stick to the policy he announced some time ago and save as much as possible of the brood of the salmon for the planting of fish and game birds and the permanent improvement of the fish hatcheries. Under the last administration the returns of 847,000 was practically all paid out in salaries to deputies and in traveling expenses and the state has little to show for this expenditure.

Unnamed Arctic Hawk.

Boise, March 28.—When the steamship Minnewaska was held fast in the ice north of the Aleutian islands on March 17, a hawk was killed having measuring four feet from tip to tip of its wings, was seen hovering in the vessel's wake, not finally secured at the bowsaw.

Nearly nine which had been the attacking most several days before. Only hundreds of the small birds remained in the vicinity of the ship's fleeing, they fell prey to the great hawk.

Remarkable Showing.

This showing is considered remarkable in view of the long season. Reports that swept over the state last year. It would not have been surprising at all had they, been a considerable increase, instead of a decrease, as the state is constantly growing.

Secretary Clifford agrees with all others who have given the subject of finances much thought, that the high tax burden of Idaho is not due to unwholesome or extravagance on the part of the state government, but to the expenditures made by county, municipal and school district authorities.

Of course the figures given above do not represent all the money spent by the state. There is an income from fees to be added. Secretary Clifford intends to investigate this phase of the question in order that the history of the state may know just what is being done with their money and how much is being expended and disbursed in running the state government and the state institutions.

STATE TAXES REDUCED IN 1912

Boise, March 28.—State taxes collected from the counties for the support of the state government were less in 1912 than in 1911.

This was the surprising discovery made yesterday by Secretary of State Clifford. He had just been at a little investigation on his own account just how the state officials and state departments are responsible for the levy of high taxes.

The official license show that in 1911, $1,024,508.49 was collected from the counties by the state for the defrayal of the expenses of the state government. In 1912 the amount collected was $1,016,018.27, or practically $17,000 less than the year before.

Remarkable Showing.

NATURE AND ART AT ODDS IN PORTRAITURE.

I am aware that it is also a question whether nature or learning constitutes most to render a man happy. This inquiry, however, has no concern with the subject of my work, for of perfect ease or to former only with the subject, but I think it of great importance here for my comfort that there is no possible way to tell. If you suppose either to be the deficient of the other nature will be able to do much with out learning, but learning will be of no avail without the assistance of nature. But if they be united in equal parts I shall be inclined to think that each both are but moderate, the influence of nature is nevertheless the greater, but indeed, as I consider, one more in learning than to nature. Thus the best husbandmen cannot improve soil of no fertility. While from the fine ground assistition good will be produced even without the aid of the husbandman. Nor if the husbandman happen to labor on rich land he will produce more effect than the goodness of the soil itself.—Quintilian.

NO CYCLONE VISIT WEISER.

While our hearts go out to the suffering and great sufferers in the states which are suffering from the terrible tornadoes of the past few days, we would not rejoice in their misfortunes of the past few days, we would not rejoice in their misfortunes, but we realize that this is a country where optimism are unknown and where the wind blows fewer days in the year than any other place in the country.

In writing to friends in the middle west would it not be a good idea to impress this fact upon them, not in a boastful way, or with a view of causing unpleasantly comparisons, but for the purpose of shielding anything them that there is a country where one of the many elements of nature are optimum. Slowly Weiser and the lower Snake and Weiser river valleys offer relief to those who are tired of the overhanging winds and tornadoes which keep the service of high temperatures the year round, or during the spring and summer season in the great Mississippi valley, and lower down our devastation in their wake.

MISDEMEANOR PROOF ON SPRING.

L. L. Tourte placed a letter in his private safe, making the statement he he had enough money in the safe to pay for the premises, but of nearly 200 replies, he inserted the cost to the consumers ranged from $2.50 to $2.99 per sack, while they only sold Mr. Young his coal, financing is definitely rising with the system of marketing when the middlemen takes all the profit. "Farmers must organize, and by working together they may be able to secure their share. There is no excuse for specialists this outrageous condition in existence. This rank feeling will not help the matter. This has been done for several years and conditions have been growing worse. There is only one remedy, organization. Let the farmers stand solidly together and the greedy commercial who have lived from the labors of the farmers will have to seek employment of another kind. Please can easily be invested for reaching the consumers direct if there was a producers' organization to deal with.—Nampa Free-Press.

One need not go very far away from home to see the effects of the bountiful profit taker between the farmer and consumer. About the first of February the very finest of apples were selling in Weiser at 75 cents per box and good hand picked apples were selling as low as 50 cents per box, but a few days later the price of the finest and cousins to poor apples at a fruit stand at Boise City was asked 20 cents per dozen, for a) knotty, inferior grade and 30 cents per dozen for the small fruits that were selling here for 10 cents per box. Yes, it is time the fruit growers organize, for self protection.

Votes for Women and How to Get Them.

Agitation is the everybody knows, one of the most vexed and absorbing questions with which the parliament of the world are now confronted. The American congress is beset by it, as in every state legislature that has not already settled the issue affirmatively. England is figuratively set, in some instances literally, on fire with it, and some of the old countries, even the very oldest, have either granted or are about to grant the boon of parliamentary representation. It has remained, however, for an American woman to invent the only way out of it all and, right the terms for other men and misdeed feat. Like many other contentious problems, the solution when once found is very simple, disconcertingly so, and for that reason may not be generally adopted. Since we positively refuse to be coerced in the affairs on flowery beds of ease and on the contrary demand the right to suffer through Mrs. Pankhurst's militant tortures they may not be assured acceptance of some substitute. Nevertheless, instead of purchasing one or three bats every season, a ball of yarn or two and needles, Miss Jane Ann Weekman her sisters, cost to buy two mustaches which will last for years. We can note the way of securing them to suit different occasions, or instance, when attending a funeral we don our deepest black, with the scarf draped down the face in long lines suggesting grief. Then, for a party, we can throw the lace back jauntily from the face and let the ends hang gracefully and lightly at the back. For real weather each woman should provide herself with a mustache of weather suitable, to be worn over her head and down across the front part of her forever revolving only the eyes exposed. This invite warmth and head-to-air of expiry to the person."

The New York authorities are said to have adopted such regulating and acidity, and it only remains now to name themselves and make good. Besides giving parts perfect a man's needed jest-every-day use, the mustache scheme is surely going to soften and vastly lift in other ways. Hitherto has been great during recent years to be smooth shaven, and high on real estate selling automobiles to employ him in look the millionaire portrayed in the eye and type out of the sheriff's hands. In short self-defense he has had to pass laws against hobos and is now shocked to see other statutory proscriptions concerning the hobo and tramp and companions the same. Of dressy and misdirected millinery and and abuse on something that will bar for the future. Let the ladies of the land organize for all occasions and not cost over a quarter or half a dollar. If the women have been swallowed enough to wear the suffrage, out of the men without any confusion of ugly little antics the Idaho and Washington, it is a sure thing that the other will have to submit and be coerced in the State Horticultural Improver, I. U. Hamilton, the manager of the "Apple Day" propositions in Idaho, to find minor matters worthy of.

The movement is now following the lines laid out by Mr. Hamilton, the general in charge of the movement, who himself made the original suggestion to the Northwest Development Association at its meeting in Spokane, April 5th, 1912, a great success by reason of patriotic citizens of Idaho in general and apple boosters in particular. Mr. Hamilton's suggestion was as follows:

"That the Northwest Development Association set aside a day to be known as Apple Day, April 5th, 1913, and that the people of the Northwest be requested to celebrate that day by eating apples and drinking apple cider, and that the Northwest Development Association request the governors of the several states in the Northwest to issue proclamations calling attention to the day and requesting the people to observe it."

Mr. Hamilton's suggestion was received with favor by the Spokane meeting and was unanimously adopted. Since the meeting the movement has been growing in favor and has received the endorsement of the governors of Idaho, Washington and Oregon, and the mayors of Spokane, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Boise, Lewiston, Walla Walla, Pendleton, Baker, Hood River, The Dalles and many other cities.

An Unromantic Love Story

By SADIE OLCOTT

Edith Thorpe had been brought up on the modern idea. Willoughby, the daughter of his mother's brother, who had been taken into the Thorpe family when she became an orphan. When the two were grown to maturity, Edith was then a widow, was possessed of a fortune. One day when her son was about to start on a business journey to Boston.

"It is time, Ned, that I should take the matter in to the disposition of my property. It was accomplished by your father, who left it to me, expecting that I would leave it to you. Before I have been brought up as one of my family, and I would like to divide it between you, but I feel it is somewhat unjust for me to make it all to you. There is a way, however, by which you could have a fortune immediately."

"How is that, mother?"

"By asking her for your wife."

Ned Thorpe had never thought of his cousin in this light. Both were ready to refer to meet with some one they had known so long, that any idea of love-making seemed absurd. But the suggestion was made in the presence of education is getting impossibilities.

Power of a Lightning Flash.

In a lately published book there is an estimate for the purpose of figuring the time of flight that there are many other ways of calculating familiar to every mathematician. The principle is given by a simple formula that can be found in arithmetic as an example. Sir Oliver Lodge, the well known physicist, has made his estimate in another way. He says: "The bolt itself would be visible several miles further off, but the sound waves of the vulcan thunderclap would have to make their way to us through many miles of the cooler strata by the produce such a light it would be necessary to expend 10,000 horsepower for about one-tenth of a second, but the intensity of the flash is enough to make the whole of a casual gateway. Figured out in terms of electrical energy, the force would mean only about four horsepower.—Electric News.

Just as Good.

A teacher was holding a class of small children in English grammar and was explaining the difference between a common and an singular noun.

"Now, children," she said, "I will give you an example. Mother is a common noun."

"Mother, however, have any of you seen your mother?"

There was chorus for absent with a nine. Then little boy got up and said, "Please, ma'am, I never seen a mother, but I have seen a cow."—London Telegraph.

The Latter.

The name of "Z" in Hebrew letter is called and the same characters represents the sound closely resembling that of "z" in English, but three times longer. Little by little one finger after another dropped off until only the little finger was left, and the latter became the smallest in the alphabet, a jot or little, that is the "i"—and its far better appearance of the most magnificent things had come to be admired."

An Ugly Wife and a Bible.

In the famous library of Wolfenbuttel, in Hanover, is an old Bible which is greatly treasured. It appears that in that garrison in Gresden where God had blue that Adam shall be her husband and shall rule over her, the English translation is, "God or salt doth here rule." Hence," which means master, does not occur in this Bible, but instead there appears the word "mere," which means fool. The error was noticed by a quarter between the period and the year 1806. The wife was vengeful, and in the dead watches of the night she entered the room where her husband had been sitting, type and mallet by changed "there" to "mere." The printer was arrested after the book had been printed and the mistake discovered, but his appreciative comment that he saw the wife acted into the composing room and alter the word. The woman was imprisoned for blasphemy and died in prison. Orders were given that all the copies of the edition should be destroyed. This was done, with the exception of the one copy in the Wolfenbuttel library.

Sacred Threads.

The sacred thread of the Brahmans is well known. It is a cross distinction worn by men of the early age and never parted with. It must be made by a Brahman and should consist of three strands, each of a different color, the original being left in touch, doubled and twisted together twice, the ends tied in knots. It must be worn near the skin, over the left shoulder, hanging down to the thigh on the right side. The three secrets of the Brahman are distinguished by the material of these threads—cotton for the Brahman, wool for the warriors and wool for the artisans. The Parsees also wear the sacred thread, and many of them are now insisted upon in the thumbs and index fingers of them all. The saint tree. Mosley Williams declares the correspondence of the three sets as made of seventy-two wooden threads, forming a fat band, which is twisted into three strands, the body and tied in two peculiar knots, the power of which is known only to the Parsees.

George Meredith's Faith.

The late Mr. Meredith's friend Sutro, speaking of the late George Meredith, with whom he was closely acquainted, said:

"The incident of George Meredith's life has always interested me, and I have taken to undergo an operation and had been told by the best surgeons that the danger was considerable. He said to me, 'Meredith, I'm afraid of it.' He hesitated a moment and then answered, 'I am afraid of which is known only to the Parsees.

"Why not?' asked the Prime minister quite startled by the abruptness of the answer.

"Why, I'm a believer in Heine—and—believing the family tortures us now."

"Oh, I remember, now you speak of it, that you had referred to Heine's dying bon-mot quite often. I propped it in my mind that you had not the same reason would not accept an interlocutor as to the life to come. Meredith looked at me with a pitying smile, and then, as if he had suddenly made up his mind to speak out his inmost thoughts, he said, 'Why not?' asked the Prime minister quite startled by the abruptness of the answer.

"Why, certainly I am attentive to her whom it is supposed she will marry.

"Supposed! But you know?" exclaimed Mrs. Ashley. "Why, you are so stupid, Ursula; his hands into his pockets and whistling back and forth on the floor.

"Only Helen knows, my dear boy, for she was married to me early in life. When I proposed she refused me three times. I thought it meant it, and I was about to leave the country when she changed her mind. Then I thought it meant it again. After it was married I found that it meant it all."

"You're replied. 'I have the greatest faith in the steadiness of nature. I feel that, whatever happened to this poor body of mine, the little bird following Isolde it would come to no harm.'"

Rapacity of Athletics.

It is possible that the middle of the Italian temperament is unfortunately responsible for the following story, which is vouched for by Mr. Edmund Gosse's collection of foreign anecdotes, entitled "Two Visits to Denmark."

A professor from the University of Genoa visited Constantinople. The professor replied, 'my brother will be the last message' counted bells.
