WHY PERKINS HATES BORAH

nation or be deprived of it through monopoly is not alone a question of the market or the price of corner lots and stocks, but it is also a question of government and morals. Monopoly is at war with democratic institutions, and the conflict is as irrepressible as was the conflict between freedom and slavery."

After this speech, which did not seem to be a straddling speech from the standpoint of monopolies, I heard nothing from Mr. Perkins indirectly but from several others. One gentleman prominent in one of the monopolies which has been under court investigation visited me and argued with me very earnestly that I was making a great mistake, that I had a career of usefulness, etc., and that I could not succeed upon that plan.

I also heard indirectly that Mr. Perkins regarded me as more or less crazy, which I must confess gave me a feeling of renewed intellectual exhilaration.

On February 12, 1911, I spoke before the Republican Club of New York and while I was not discussing at that time particularly this subject, I was not willing to let the occasion pass without reverting to it and said, referring to those who insisted upon a Progressive Republican party:

"We ask for nothing more and will be reconciled with nothing less than a free, full expression and the full flow of opinion in party council and party agencies from its veteran and members, to the end that this great code of humane and progressive laws, of wise and permanent institutions, may be extended, that the work may go on until political freedom shall be at the beginning and industrial freedom at the end of the party story, until monopoly, ten thousand times worse than black slavery, shall understand that between it and republican institutions there is eternal war. Mexican war, where all the captured are slain without the benefit of clergy."

After those remarks before the Republican club I had a letter from the same gentleman who had previously talked with me about my views as above stated, and in this letter he says that the men who are pursuing the course I am pursuing in politics, that he has seen them try it before, and he concludes his statement by saying in reference to those who have tried it, "They are now all on the retired list." About this time I was also informed upon what I believed to be reliable authority but confidential that Mr. Perkins had said he had put aside a sum of money to retire Senator La Follette, Senator Cummins and Senator Borah.

Well, I went out to Ohio on the 26th of February and made some remarks before the Republicans of Ohio and referred again to this question of monopoly. I repeated in some respects the line of argument which I had made at Baltimore and New York. Among other things, I said:

"Monopoly is ten thousand times worse than black slavery. It is the father of class domination, the moulder of chains both for the body and the soul and cannot exist in any form with safety to the people in a republic."

I quote this because of the similarity to the language used in New York which Mr. Perkins would have understand is a different argument. I further said:

"A republic is strong enough to destroy but never could be strong enough to regulate monopoly. The human system may survive the knife but it never can survive the subtle encroachment of the insidious hamper of disease. Some of these days all political parties, because the people will rise in their might, will take up this proposition of monopoly and declare in terms unmistakable that a republic and a monopoly cannot exist under the same flag."

Several years ago Mr. Perkins organized the Harvester trust. It was a combination in violation of law which for fire and misery he brought into existence. It brought together some five or six manufacturers who had theretofore been competitors and the object and purpose of the combination was to destroy competition, to take control of the market and to obtain that power which would enable the trust to fix the price upon agricultural implements. It was designed and intended to be a monopoly which would oberate the agricultural interests of the country all the traffic would bear. Mr. Perkins was one of the three voting trustees and together with his associates had absolute power over this monopoly. With free trade for the farmer in open competition with the world, and with this monopoly overhead, his outlook did not appear to me to be very bright, and I referred to this monopoly and this free trade proposition in my speech in Ohio as follows:

"This seemed to be more than this trust organizer could stand and he addressed me a letter to which I replied.

In this letter I called attention to his activities in Alaska where he was the representative of Morgan and Company, and the Guggenheim brothers, and I called his attention to the fact that the testimony under oath disclosed that he was there to monopolize the transportation interests and the natural resources of Alaska. To this charge his sole and only answer was that when he returned home from this task he gave out an interview at Seattle suggesting that the government operate the coal lands upon a royalty basis. He seems to possess among other great qualities a sense of humor. Naturally I supposed he did give out such an interview, but curiosity led me to investigate and you will find his interview in the Post-Intelligencer under date of August 31, 1909. I do not find any reference in it whatever to the matter which he claims was a part of it, but I do find what I consider a distinct criticism of the action of the government in regard to its conservation policy in Alaska and the famous Ballinger-Pinchot controversy. I do not claim, however, that Mr. Perkins is to blame for

REFUSES TO NAME THE SENATOR

C. O. Broxon says he did not mention the name of Senator Brady in his speech here when he referred to the acquisition of a quarter section of state land by questionable methods. When asked who he did name if he did not mention Senator Brady, he replied: "I did not name the senator or his private secretary to whom I referred," and then declines to further elucidate upon the subject. Many who were present thought he said Brady; others say they inferred from what he said that he meant Brady, while still others say they thought he intended to try to leave the impression that it was Brady. Anyway he says he did not say Brady, and his refusal to say who he meant leaves us still in the dark.

Citizens of Weiser and Washington county have learned with sincere regret of the affliction of Justice Stewart of the supreme court, and will join the Signal in the hope that he may yet recover from the stroke of paralysis. The Judge is one of the most lovable men in Idaho and has more warm friends in this section than any other man in public life. Through years of service as judge of this district his official and personal demeanor was such as to inspire the greatest of respect on the part of the people and his condition is deplored by all.

Only three weeks ago Volmer was asking Republicans who visited Boise to visit his room at the Owyhee and also him up as a Republican candidate for governor, and now we are informed that he considers it an honor to be classed with Perkins and other Progressive leaders, and will be pleased to run as their candidate for governor. Another case of sour grapes it would seem.

Commandments for Women.

Oakland, California, has a new Moses who has climbed a new mount and brought back new tablets and new commandments. His other name is the Rev. Frank L. Goodspeed, and his other occupation is that of pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Oakland.

His new commandments are for women only and here they are. Is circumcised from his pulpit last Sunday:

"Thou shalt not marry for revenge or money and for love of being an old maid.

After marriage thou shalt not so far forget thy personal appearance as to leave thy husband in an old wrapper.

Thou shalt not dress so as to furnish jokes for comic papers.

Thou shalt not allow thy children to run wild in the street, even that thou mayest attend the missionary meeting.

Thou shalt not be jealous of thy neighbor if she rides in an automobile than are compelled to use a trolley car.

Thou shalt not tempt men and boys by serving liquor, even if thou collect it punch.

Thou shalt not make thy home a purge of faultfinding, lest the husband acquire the habit of thinking that every night is lodge night.

Thou shalt not spell home in any new way, nor refrain nor hen-pen, nor shall thou confuse matrimony with alimony.

Thou shalt never aspire to be a man, nor other than a noble woman, for when He made the ideal woman, He stopped because He had reached the summit of creation."

Better Roads.

In the March American Magazine H. C. Beard, Iowa's state highway commissioner, tells how the town of Mt. Ayr in Iowa got better roads.

A banquet was given to a representative body of farmers living near the town. When the talking was considered, the president of the commercial club announced that the merchants of the town had decided to of for $250 in five cash prizes to the organization of farmers who best improved certain portions of roads leading into the town. The organizations were to choose their own road for improvement and to elect officers and to do the work. Mr Beard goes on as follows.

"Seven road clubs were organized before the banquet hall had been deserted, and in a few days the principal thought and topic of conversation around Mt. Ayr was improving the roads to Mt. Ayr. Work was performed at all times when farm work was not demanding attention. Hauling to is became at a premium. In one township it became necessary for the one in possession of a road grader to take the wheels from it at night and lock them in caves to prevent the grader from joining another road club in the night time.

"Highways that had been neglected to paths were converted into good roads before the time for the final judging was to be done. Brains were combined with labor to get the results. Men working in the daytime would meet at a convenient home in the evening and discuss methods for working the roads. One road copied the work of another, and as a result uniform methods of road building were worked out. And now the new town state highway commission has followed many of their methods in improving roads of the state.

"Business followed the better roads and the trade territory of the town has more than doubled in the four years that the plan has been followed. Men striving to learn how to get interest in road making aroused have come many miles to see what has been done and who are doing it. Farmers, merchants, commercial clubs and farmers' clubs have sent delegations in autos to see the work and learn from the workers. Merchants, trade journals and automobile journals have told of the scheme to every corner of the country. The town has been advertised and the work has been copied until Mt. Ayr thinks its business men and the farmers near it have had a great part in the 'good better roads' movement that is sweeping the country."

The Income of the Hired Man.

In the days of yore the hired man was looked on as the poorest paid individual on earth, and his reputation for incompetency was about on a par with his wages. It is not our purpose to discuss why this was the case, but to point out the change which has taken place within the last decade a change which is still in effect and the causes of which are still in operation.

Today the farm helper is a trained man. He is as much an expert in his line as is the skilled mechanic of the various trades. This is not always the case, of course, but it is true of so many that it is evident that in the course of time, no unskilled farm labor will be wanted, and an adequate training will be requisite for a job.

Since 1894 the wages of hired help on the farms have been advancing. Today they are 87 per cent higher than they were in 1894. Farm wages are highest in the west. For example, wages without board in Nevada are stated on an average of $76.60, while in Mississippi they are $19.60. These are extremes, but the rule holds good.

The premium for harvest wages over ordinary wages are diminishing, although it still exists. Thirty years ago the wages at harvest time averaged nearly 60 per cent higher than at other times of the year. Last year the average premium was only 32 per cent higher.

When board is furnished wages for farm help is about one-third less. That is, the charge for board is about one-third of what a man can earn. It is interesting to note that during the past thirty years this ratio is maintained, which would seem to indicate that it is a correct proportion. In connection with the increase in wages, this certainly points to a far better condition for hired farm help. If the hired man can make $40 per cent more money while his living expenses have increased only in proportion, his earning capacity is vastly improved.

Further it is of importance to know that money wages for farm help have risen relatively more than for factory workers. Statistics show that the increase in farm wages has been more than double that of factory hands.

This steady increase of commercial demand for hired hands on farms has taken place not in the United States alone, but in almost all parts of the world. Similar movements have taken place in Russia, Hungary, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and even in Japan.

We believe that the reason for this comparatively large increase is due to two main factors. The first is the advance in the price of land, and the second is the increase in the knowledge and efficiency of the farm hand himself. As in every other line of effort, remuneration depends chiefly on ability.—Rural Spirit.

To Discuss Fixed Date for Easter.

A proposal to have the world adopt a fixed date for Easter will be discussed and acted upon at the biennial meeting of the International congress of Chambers of Commerce which is to meet in Paris next June. Such is the announcement made by the permanent committee of the congress, which met in Brussels to approve the program prepared for the Paris meeting.

The fact that the variable date for Easter causes much embarrassment and loss to certain lines of trade is responsible for the movement to have the festival celebrated on a fixed date. It is suggested by the supporters of the movement that the fixed date could be brought about by regulating Easter by the Sun instead of the moon.—Baker Herald.

D. WARD KING IS COMING

Inventor of the Split Log Drag to Give Demonstrations Near Weiser and in the Upper Country.

[illegible] Ward King, inventor of the King split log drag, [illegible] Was made to get more people out, and those who failed to respond certainly missed a treat as the talk of Mr. Reed was full of information for those interested in road building.

At the conclusion of Mr. Reed's address his hearers had begun to discuss his remarks [illegible] proposed with what he had said of the efficiency of the split log drag that they persuaded him to remain over until Friday and let the directors of the club what would be necessary to get Mr. King to stop over here on his way to the Pacific coast. This he did and an automobile was immediately made to hear Mr. King here for two meetings, and the dates [illegible] fixed for April 27 and 28th.

The coming of Mr. King has nothing whatever to do with the proposed state highway proposition, or the plan of issuing bonds but it is entirely independent and has only to do with the matter of dragging roads for the purpose of keeping them in good condition and saving money for taxpayers. The plan of having two meetings is so the people of both the upper country and the valley can have the benefit of Mr. King's experience and see his wonderful demonstrations, so he goes right out on the road and shows how it is done. His method of road building has the endorsement of the National government, and his drag is conceded to be the cheapest and best implement for road maintenance.

It will cost $250 to get Mr. King here for the two demonstrations and the commercial club guaranteed that amount, although the people of the upper country will be asked to assist in defraying the expense unless the county commissioners will help. As it is believed the lectures and demonstrations will save the people of the county many thousands of dollars a year it is thought the county board will do its part.

Advertising matter will be issued as soon as it can be prepared, and it is hoped the meetings held by Mr. King will be the largest ever held in Washington county. His work is such that no less than six railroads in the east and middle west have put special trains at his disposal for the sole purpose of having him show the people along the lines how to keep their highways in proper shape. No farmer in Washington county can afford to miss these meetings and as much is to be learned at no cost to them it is hoped all will avail themselves of this rare opportunity.

Boy Breaks Leg.

Sunday afternoon, Vernon, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fletcher, suffered a bad fracture of the bone of his left leg just above the ankle, also a bad cut just below the knee. He and some other boys were playing in the rear of the hardware store of J. L. Keithly, where a lot of machinery had been placed. Among the pieces was a large fly wheel, leaning up against the building. In some manner Fletcher pulled it over on him, the heavy wheel falling on his leg with the above result. He was unable to move until the wheel was lifted off his leg. He was immediately carried to the office of Dr. Marshall, where the cut was dressed and the fracture of the bone reduced. The little fellow is getting along as well as could be expected, but is suffering much pain.—Middle Reporter.

Prof. Seed, who talked on the subject of good roads at the Commercial club rooms Thursday evening, left in company with his wife for Baker City [illegible] evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Brownfield of Tamarack were in the city today, en route to their home from La Grande where they have been visiting friends for the past two weeks.

E. M. Barton left this morning for Boise where he will consult a physician concerning his health. He has been in a rather serious condition for the past several weeks.

Harry Moulton came in from North Powder Friday night and visited Sunday with relatives and friends. He came to bid on the Apple & Jones harness shop, but this was bid in by E. E. Coulter.

J. W. Cage has had a number of custom boxes placed outside each of the largest windows at Baker Wash Co. which will be filled with blooming plants this summer. This will greatly enhance the appearance of this popular foodery.

S. H. Coon came in today from Long Creek, where he has been visiting his son, Harry Coon and family, at Cambridge. While in the city he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Purcell at Hotel Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Ball, of Aspleton were in the city today en route home from Ontario, where they spent Sunday. They live on what is known as the Parker ranch, having there from North Yakima last October. Mr. Ball has just completed a fine residence and otherwise improved the place which has greatly increased its val-

West Side Patrons' Club.

There will be a meeting of the West Side Patrons' club and teachers association Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 at the school building. Matters of importance, especial the box social movement, will be discussed, and a full attendance is desired.

Married.

Announcements have been received by friends in this city of the marriage at Gardner, Ore., on Wednesday, March 25, of Miss Pearl Smith and Mr. Albert Johnston. Mrs. Johnston is a sister of Mrs. Radford with whom she made her home while they all lived in this city. Her many friends extend best wishes for a long and happy life.

Are on the Market.

For the past few days Jesse W. Day has been one busy man. More than a year ago he patented a quill box for rural delivery use and since then it has been accepted by the government and by the postal department. He is now having the boxes made in large quantities and is putting them on the market. He reports a ready sale and says he has visions of oceans of money when business gets real good.

COMPLETE SURVEY OF EAST AND WEST PROPOSED ROAD

Engineer French Declares This Strip of Road Will Be One of the Cheapest in the State.

The survey for the east and west route of the National Highway across Washington county was completed Friday evening from Olds Ferry to the Canyon county line a quite east of Crystal. Engineer S. M. French said this morning that this strip of road would be about the cheapest that the National Highway commission would have to build. The length of the road is practically 24 miles and in a general way it follows the O. R. & N. road track. There is in all about four miles of new road to be built most of which is beyond Weiser to the west.

As surveyed the route will pass through Weiser on Main street. It will leave the county road near the Conant place and cut direct, across connecting with the west end of Main street passing down on Main to 7th street east and then going toward Sunnyside.

It will be necessary to build three small steel bridges and about the same number of concrete arches.

There are practically no cuts of fills of any consequence but in the greater part of the way the road will follow the natural contour of the country.

The maps are being made at this time and it is not positive to give even any estimates on the probable cost although Mr. French said it would be some place in the hundreds of dollars. It would not be as much as a thousand dollars a mile including the cost of the bridges.

As soon as the maps are completed by the commissioners, also actual work will start north to New Meadows.

Washington Triangle.

The three-cornered piece of ground lying directly east of Hotel Washington has been designated as the Washington Triangle. The city has placed a system of underground pipes for irrigation and sown it to blue grass and clover. It is hoped the citizens will take pride in it and assist in keeping it free from rubbish and "Keep off the grass" which it shows that it may continue a thing of beauty and not a [illegible]. The city's small sprinkling plant is also directed along these lines, together with our natural advantages we tend to make Weiser a [illegible] center.

Ill Health Causes Insanity.

Mrs. Otto Christensen is in the county jail at Council, where she was committed this afternoon by Commissioner Hall. It is reported that she has entirely lost her reason and it is about time that she was taken care of. Mrs. Christensen's condition became ill a few months ago and has been growing worse ever since. She was committed to the Blackfoot asylum but a question of her ability to stand the trip all after into the committment. She has been ill in health for the past several months.

Effect of Oats on Flavor of Milk.

It has been reported by some dairymen that the feeding of crushed oats to cows will improve the flavor of the milk. To ascertain the correctness of this theory a series of experiments was made by the bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture at the experimental farm at Beltsville, Maryland. In the latter part of December, 1913, three cows of a grain ration of corn meal, bran and cottonseed meal. The other three were fed a grain mixture of five parts crushed oats one part cottonseed meal. A number of samples of milk from the cows fed these rations were submitted to various persons in the dairy division and they were asked to indicate their preference. In all 50 opinions were passed on various samples of these 16 showed a preference for the milk from cows fed on crushed oats, 25 preferred that from the bran and corn ration, while nine expressed no choice. The results show that in these rations not only was there no marked difference in favor of the crushed oats as a feed but if anything, to have given a slight preference to the ration containing bran and corn [illegible] more successful in producing a fine flavored milk.

FEW CHANGES MADE IN BASE BALL CONSTITUTION

The Only Important One Is That Pertaining to the Use of Salaried Players—This Is Permissable.

A meeting of the directors of the Idaho-Oregon baseball league was held in Ontario Friday afternoon. June Wilkff of this city was sent to represent the local club. At this meeting the schedule was again revised and is now complete. There was no changes made which will affect Weiser and the opening game will be played here on the afternoon of Easter Sunday with Ontario.

Emmett and Caldwell were both represented and asked for admission into the league, but because of the distance to Caldwell and the fact that small crowds are usually the result there the league took action to keep both of them out.

The salary question was threshed out and closed with the understanding that any team could go as far as it liked on spending money. The names of the players to be used must be in the hands of the secretary not later than the 6th and after that it will be necessary to give 15 days notice before a new man can be played and then it will be left up to the directors wether he gets in or not.

The local team is in pretty good shape for work this season with the exception of the pitching staff. It is barely possible that others will be gathered in before the opening of the season. Each club is restricted to 15 men on the start.

Manager Day is trying to get a game with Boise to be played here the 5th of April.

BOX SUPPER A FROST

Players and Fans Pass Up Opportunity to Add to Exchequer of Baseball Association.

Enthusiasm equal to an old maids' convention was displayed at the baseball box supper held at the K. P. hall Friday night. Three baseball players were present. The rest were contemptuous by their absence. Some few, some very few, fans were present and altogether there were five boxes brought up for sale, but when the owners noticed the size of the ensemblage they straightway changed their minds about the sale and took them away again.

A special cake had been ordered for the evening to be put up for the prettiest girl. It was made in the shape of a baseball diamond and frosted with appropriate wording. This cake was put up and after some warm bidding it was presented to the winner, Mrs. Jesse Day. It brought $3.65. A box of candy sent up by P. A. Whistler was sold to the highest bidder and brought another dollar. The expenses will exceed the proceeds a few dollars.

The music was furnished by an orchestra composed of Mr. Bone, E. M. Brown, C. T. Allen, Errol Waters and John Brockman. These people played for more than an hour and produced the entire amount of entertainment for the evening.

Chemistry and the Cow.

Through the beneficent influence of chemistry the old-fashioned dairy, with its herd of Jerseys and Holsteins, is destined to soon disappear, and every well ordered household will produce its daily supply of milk and butter in a private laboratory, conducted in the kitchen. Even the most crowded of flat dwellers at a few moments' notice will be able to enjoy at home all the luxuries of country life, unless the latest news from London is misleading. With a quantity of casein obtained from the soy bean, an English scientist has manufactured synthetically a quantity of pure and wholesome milk and excellent butter and cream.

It is amazing how much of its energies nature squanders in needless ways. Throughout the endless ages it has been working at the interminable task of creating a food supply for the race of man that requires his constant attention and labor. Because of its prevailing tedious processes which a London chemist by a slight-of-hand trick proves were wholly unnecessary.

If Some one of course must grow soy beans, as a basis of the synthetic milk supply. Unless another chemist can turn them out in unlimited quantities by a combination of gases and inorganic matter. But that is a more detail. Still, if milk and butter can be manufactured so handily, why not cheese and eggs, coffee and rolls? Why should so many people go on forever producing something for other people to eat three times a day every day in the year, if science by a simple formula can save them all the trouble?—New York World.

HE LOVED HER BUT SHE MOVED AWAY TO WEISER

The crying but weeping wife fell into the arms of her husband, the prosecuting attorney dashed out of the court room for some hot water, the defendant tossed pole and general conversation reigned supreme in the office of the probate judge Saturday afternoon when the case of the state of Idaho vs. Levi Kellogg and Stute E. Shadle was called for trial. A few minutes after the jurors were discharged, the husband and wife reunited, the costs assessed against the prosecution and the last scene of the defendant was on the Oregon side of the river as he sat on his trunk waiting for a wagon to convey him hence.

According to the history of the case W. H. Kellogg, an old gentleman claiming to be a doctor of rheumatism, came into this city the latter part of January in company with a young woman whom he claimed to be his daughter. They put up at the Weiser hotel for some time but later took up light housekeeping rooms in the east part of town and all went merry. In the meantime the woman giving her name as Stella Emma Shadle started divorce proceedings against her husband, Lee Grant Shadle, claiming positive knowledge that he was not in the state.

A little more than a week ago Levi Kellogg, son of W. H., came into Weiser and took up his residence with his father. This man Kellogg is the one who was entered in the preliminary baling contest against Gerdean under the name of Nelson.

Saturday morning Mr Shadle, husband of Mrs. Shadle, dropped into Weiser from his home in Utah and filed information against his wife charging her with illegal cohabitation. It was given the case came to trial the case was dropped and the rheumatism doctor and his son have both left for parts unknown.
