A RUINED ROMANCE

George's Ward's Story of Her Wedding Tragedy

Parted at the Church Door

After a beautiful marriage ceremony, George's Ward and her husband were on their way to the honeymoon. The bride was radiant with joy, and the groom was smiling broadly. They were surrounded by friends and family, all wishing them well.

But as they stepped out of the church door, a sudden change came over George's face. He looked at her with a look of horror and turned back into the church. The bride was left standing alone in the doorway, her face pale and her hands outstretched in a gesture of despair.

The wedding party was in a state of confusion. The priest, who had just finished the ceremony, looked on in amazement. The bridesmaids and groomsmen were all staring at George's Ward in disbelief.

George's Ward never spoke a word. She simply turned and walked away, leaving behind her a trail of mystery and tragedy. The wedding party was left to wonder what had happened, and the honeymoon was never taken.
