JOHNSON DEPENDS ON SPEED FOR BUSINESS

Has Made Phenomenal World's Record in Past Six Years—Is the "Phenom" of the Diamond.

Following is a story of Walter Johnson and a short history of his career, in the form of an article by Walter Working Wynne Winnard. The excerpt is taken from the Oppenheim Randall's history and no parallel for the wonderful career of Walter Perry Johnson, the tall distinguished member of the Griffithian club, who next Thursday inaugurates his seventeenth season as a member of the Washington Nationals.

By early January a stalwart young man in southern Virginia was doing practically unknown to the baseball world. This was destined to startle the baseball world arrived in Washington unheralded and wearing in 1907 a modish tuxedo-and-soft-hat-the-side mode of discussion among baseball students, for by natural ability, unaided by coaches, he had shown himself capable of steadfast into the American league and stepping the best of fellows where they were at the top of their game.

When he first played on the regular nine Johnson was a catcher, but he preferred pitching, and, being quite easily born for his age, had the way with his youthful companions. Within two seasons he had developed such speed and control that he attracted the attention of three scouts, the little town in Allen county, and was finally induced to go to Tacoma, in the Pacific coast league. He lasted but one week, although he pitched splendid ball he was never really given a fair trial.

He started back to Kansas, but the longing for baseball soon drew him to Weiser, Idaho, and his record there attracted the attention of members of the Pacific coast. Remembering his experience with Tacoma, Johnson refused what appeared to be most attractive offers but appeared then all.

In the meantime a friend of Joe Cantillon, who was then Washington manager, wrote him recommending Johnson and declaring emphatic that showed the great strike-out record of the pitcher.

Cliff Blankenship, the catcher, telegraphed Cantillon, who was then scouting the west for material for the Nationals. Cantillon wired Blankenship to go to Idaho, and, using the name was rushed to the east, he met with the great record and signed a Washington contract and was on his way to the capital.

Honest almost to fault, the "swiftest working Weiser wizard," as he was referred to when a debutante, he declined to talk scout of himself, but of the secret of his success, he says:

"There is really no secret about it. I owe all success to my extraordinary speed. During the first three I ever handled a baseball I had a great deal of speed. It came natural to me to throw the ball harder than the ordinary pitcher, and it was not long before I came to remember speed on my chief stock in trade. Up to this year I depended practically on it alone. "In fact, I used to pitch four or five straight fast balls for every curve, I would have to retire curves, but also to develop a good slow ball. When I could control but most of the curve-ball was a matter of confidence. I could never seem to get much of my curves, and I could not get my slow ball over the plate.

"So I was obliged to fall back on my straight fast ones, which I could pitch, generally—came to depend almost most wholly upon sheer speed. I also tried to perfect a system of change of pace."

Johnson prefers to work every fourth day, but he can pitch every second or third day if it is necessary for him to do so. He cannot keep this up for any prolonged length of time, however. He guards his health very carefully and is always ready to go to the aid of a wealthy brother or the second or start a game.

"In sharp efforts to put a contest which would be effecting and would not depend wholly on speed, I often tried the spit ball, which has been so much criticised," I worked on the spit ball not a little, but could not get much on the ball. In fact, I have come to the conclusion that in order to be successful with that difficult delivery the pitcher must use his entire time to it. I think Ed Walsh of the White Sox is the supreme king of the spit ball pitchers.

"I have often thought that I might kill a man if I ever happened to hit him squarely in the head with one of my fast ones," he says. "I never stop to think of it on the diamond, though, I would not be a good pitcher if I did. The pitcher is in the game to pitch and it's up to the batter to look out for any wild ones that may come his way. I have never in my entire baseball career hit a batter intentionally."

Linker is the hardest batter for him to face. His motto "Whose Son" Crawford second and Ty Cobb third.

Johnson has no desire to create a strike-out record.

"Striking out means worse out a man's arm faster than anything else will do," he says. "The more fast ball I use what is commonly known as what is a speed pitcher makes it better unavoidably that I strike out a considerable number of men. More active outs are won on sheer speed than in any other way."

sent that Socialism that has arisen in the latter's state, California, with regard to the ownership of lands by aliens.

The president and Mr. Lane studied the two bills now pending before the California legislature. No contract was forthcoming in the White House, but it is believed that the measure if eventually passed will not differ from the Alien land laws now in effect in the District of Columbia and territories of the Union. For this reason there is little hope entertained in official circles here that the popular feeling in Japan will be relieved, though it confidently is expected that the Japanese government will understand the difficulties of the situation for the federal government and that the basis of protest will be removed on the final construction of the acts.

European Unrest Affirmed.

SACRAMENTO—Not the exclusion of the Japanese farmer, but the probable effect of the proposed alien land law on the millions of European capital invested in the state, and on the principal issue involved in the bills to restrict the rights of foreigners in California, one of which was passed by the assembly.

In the long protest that has arisen from representatives of English and continental syndicates, the original object of the new laws been obscured and overlooked—for stronger than that represented by the formal complaints of the Japanese government is being brought to bear in an effort to kill the measures or to amend them to such a way as to affect only Japanese.

The assembly bill permits corporations organized by persons ineligible to citizenship to own property, but the assembly bill makes no distinction, which is in line with the strong sentiment heretofore existing against discrimination or Japanese by discriminating in favor of the subjects of any other nation. The senate bill closes all foreign syndicates and companies as aliens, and it is admitted that if the amended, imperial wording of the act is to be retained, it will be impossible to exempt Europeans.

Within the last 24 hours scores of letters and telegrams have been received in the dozen attorneys and capitalist here made their appearance, all protesting against the law that would be indirect to the present investments of the

HOUSE OBJECTS TO NAMING MORMONS

Interview In Which He Says There Is Nothing To Be Gained By Giving Them Office.

Washington Correspondent Fred Lemp is in receipt of much interested in the appointment of Heber Grant to office in Idaho and the Mormon church will do well to be members who believe in the Mormon church and who desire public offices. Probably the Mormons will be opposed in the democratic state, in view of the Underwood tariff bill, the sugar industries in Utah and Idaho, the same city, extensively the authorized Interview Senator Dubois Vote for Taft.

Many of the Mormon church have given to the Star-Republican for Taft in Idaho before election, and almost unanimously, people who think that the being in power after will vote the Republican ticket.

Such people, the Mormon church called, is justified in this institution. The Mormons in the subscription to the Bank of Commerce, which Grant's name is one of the directors. The Mormons are rich and the 12 apostles are high generals have been and still Monopoly on Salt Lake Business.

"The Mormon church itself has a monopoly of the salt business in the intermountain country, the president of the church being the president of the salt factory which gets its product from the Great Salt Lake. Salt is a big item in the Republican campaign fund. Practically everything which the Mormon church is interested in commercially is on the Republican ticket. Practically everybody in the Democratic party is secure Mormon votes. There are certain, and well known very clearcut Democratic and prominent by the organization.

"President Wilson and the democratic party might make a deal with the Mormon church by which they could secure their votes. President Wilson and the democratic might also make a deal with Wall street by which they could secure the support of Wall street. The party-line would have to pay in order the influence of either the Mormons or Wall street would be the total disinvestment of the party which they now occupy and without embarrassment to those cordial partners. The leaders believe that Mormons, Wall street and the Republican republican party is solved, consolidation satisfactory and will exist those unless the democratic party radically changes its policies."

Fruit Soon to Destroy Decent Politics.

It is announced at Washington that, of the farmers interviewed at certain sections by representatives of the Department of Agriculture, more than 40 per cent said they "took no stock in farmers' institutes, demonstration agencies, farm papers or the department's official publications as aids in helping to make the soil productive." It is not stated in what section of the country these agents made their inquiries. It certainly is a most pitiful report for the country to publish. It was made if it is at all accurate. It would not have been supposing a decade or two ago to have had such records for at that time [illegible] was just beginning to [illegible] practical, common-sense, hard working farmers throughout the country. Since that time animal diseases, such as hog cholera; fruit pests, the boll weevil and countless other plant troubles have been well and successfully studied and an equal number of effective improvements made, in planting, growing and in other agricultural lines. Other interesting information dealing with seedings, the chemistry of the soil, by-products and a thousand and one other topics are being brought to practical consideration, and the farmers' interest has kept pace with the developments, until now there is a commensurate demand for more knowledge and more facts.

It is pleasing to be able to state that such, at least, is the case of the Idaho farmers, who are among those who are fast awakening to the possibilities of scientific farming. Institutes, demonstration trains, experimental work and farmers' schools have created an intense interest in what they had to show and in touch, and most of the Idaho farmers are ready to adopt the methods and plans suggested by those who have gained expert knowledge of the work they are doing, with the result that both the amount and the quality of products are improving from year to year. This is also shown in the increased value of farm property in the homes conducted and facilities now enjoyed on the farms, in domestic science, arts and crafts to which the better roads, for daily mails, for rural telephone conveniences that do as much to bridge the gap between the country and the town. Lewis county is associated to procure the constant services of an agricultural expert and other counties are considering the same step. So the leaven is working, in the unsolved country at least. The man who recognizes things to be the one who believes in success and who is willing to learn what he does not know. The obsession applies to the farmer as well as to all other activities of life.—Lewiston Tribune.

No Reason For a Tie Vote.

For some unknown reason there widely prevalent idea that the United States offers a reward for the discovery of a fib other than can be true, as a result. Many letters are received by the geological survey every day asking about this supposed reward. Where the rumor started is unknown but it seems to be fostered by ill-natured or ignorant persons who have stolen stock to sell. The survey's officials say that the United States does not offer and so far as known to them never has offered a reward for the discovery of a fib or any other lie.

Old Fable.

"I believe that phrenology is a fake."

"Why?"

"He asked me if an abscondidge was if I didn't want a sanitcon. Then he kept it off immediately, but I have my suspicions."—Pittsburgh Post.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS

Professor Frederick Starr, of the department of anthropology of the University of Chicago, recently told the members of his class that women in the future, like, both had the same brains. It is to mistake from the members of the human race. "Progressed food, hats and shoes have rendered hair, teeth and the brain unchanged," he said. "The idea will come when the man, woman or child possessing these will be a freak. All parts of the body are to go will gradually disappear." Following out the professor's method of reasoning the fifth generation of the Thomas Lovejoy family will be entirely but an animated gas bladder.

All the world may love a lover, but the interesting young man could be contented if he felt certain of the affections of just one of the many.

If anyone could have everything he wanted, there would be no possible way to acquire the demandin.

Prohibition bills are passing various legislatures—and the assumption among the growing generations.

Does anyone know who is at the head of the revolution in Mexico this week?

Quite often the most effective criticism is that which would never have been spoken but that the criticised one overhear was a talking out.

Always Ready to March.

"There isn't an army post in the United States whose garrison couldn't make ready inside of an hour to start off for any point," said an army officer. "Cheyenne? Well, there's nothing mechanical about it. A man naturally is ready when he sleeps and lives with his equipment at all times. There would be no confusion. How could there be when a trooper has his clothes, his gun, his shoulder with its ninety rounds of ammunition, his haversack? The bugle is always ready for use, and when the men are going on a short march two men share a small shelter tent, half of which is carried by each man. Take, right after the Vogie floods, in the cold an hour, a man can sort out his belongings, and he ready to go and where."—New York Sun.

Wifely

"Do the men pull up to the wife door of the Idaho office. He lobbed the clock and was fined $5 and costs. "Have I time to get my hair cut?" he pleaded. "Yes, have time," replied the agent. "But, I don't think you'll the time."—Cincinnati Enquirer.
