Three polo clubs and three army teams will enter the tournament and will compete for the ninth corps championship. The teams are the Boise polo club, the Northwest polo club, the Boise polo club, the Boise polo club, and the Boise polo club. The tournament will be held at the Boise polo club.

BOISE AVIATOR IS KILLED IN FALL

WAS MAKING TEST FLIGHT OF HOME-MADE SCOUT PLANE AT BOISE

BOISE—Don Jokisch, 24, well known as a passenger flyer in southern Idaho and Utah, was instantly killed Friday morning at 10:30 a. m. when the right wing of his scout monoplane was torn apart and the plane fell into a nose dive, falling 600 feet into a cow shed in a pasture about three miles west of Boise. The probable reason for the crash, according to witnesses, was Jokisch's unfamiliarity with that type of plane, combined with excessive speed. It was estimated that the plane was traveling 120 miles an hour.

The plane was wrecked, the parts being smashed into bits, as was the end of the cow shed upon which the plane landed. The engine was nearly buried in the ground. Jokisch was terribly mutilated, and it is thought death was instantaneous. His jawbone was broken in two places, his left foot was fractured and both arms were broken, according to Dr. H. W. Stone, who was called to St. Luke's hospital where Jokisch was taken by H. H. Bryant. In addition he had deep scratches in several places all over the body. His lower lip was almost cut off. It was said by witnesses that when he was taken from the wreckage the "joy-stick" or steering apparatus was firmly clutched in his hand. The plane, owned and built by Fred Chambers at his home on approved plans, was similar to the regular scout or pursuit monoplane used by the United States government during the war. Construction was started approximately two years and a half ago by Chambers, who worked evenings after school and in spare time. It carried a nine cylinder 80 horse power LeRhone motor. During the last six months Jokisch, who saw service in the army during the war and who was employed as head of the electrical department of the Boise branch of the Ford Motor company, aided Chambers in the construction.

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Navy, William D. Cresswell, declared today that the United States navy was far below a full point below the Washington treaty ratio, which will be laid down in the house today. It is expected the report will give impetus to the drive being made by the house naval affairs committee for passage of the bill appropriating $15,000,000 for a five-year construction program to restore the navy to full strength in the next five years. The report is for the house of the deficiency of the navy as follows: 1—Thirteen of our fleet of 218 ships are neither modern nor of the highest efficiency. They require gun, armor and machinery repair and protection and are being converted for other duties. 2—In addition, the United States navy has a ratio of 4-4-2, whereas Great Britain has a ratio of 5-5-5. 3—Thirty-five of our submarines are out of commission. 4—We have no submarines capable of maneuvering with the best of the United States fleet. 5—The United States is behind in destroyers through various factors. 6—Great Britain is building two battleships a year, while we are building none. 7—Great Britain is building five light cruisers a year, while we are building none. 8—Senator Hale, Republican of Maine, chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, took issue in the senate today with secretary of the navy who said the navy is a full point below the treaty ratio, in effect the navy is a full point below the treaty ratio. 9—If present plans are carried out, the navy will soon reach parity with Great Britain, he said. 10—The country never had an equal ratio with Great Britain even at the time of the disarmament conference. 11—Ship for ship, with the exception of our old obsolete ships, our battleships are now, however, of greater tonnage, carry more or heavier guns and are more heavily armored than the present British ships, Hale said.

Without question one of the best baseball games in this section in many a day was that at Baker yesterday when the Weiser entry in the Idaho-Oregon league defeated the Baker club by a score of 2 to 1. It was a good game from every standpoint. It was clean and hard fought, was marked by good pitching and clean fielding and produced a goodly number of thrills for the fans. Following is what the correspondent at Baker for the Boise Statesman thought of the game: BAKER—Weiser noosed out Baker in the seventh inning of a hard fought contest here Sunday. Tight fielding, plenty of thrills and a remarkable day in the box for Erickson, Weiser no-hitter, kept the crowd of 400 fans on edge throughout the session. The visiting hurler struck out 13 men, while Payette, his Baker rival, accounted for six. Erickson also refused to issue any free passes. Baker, Weiser catcher, displayed a tremendous whip, nipping three would-be hitters on second with snappy throws from behind the bat. Tuma, Baker left fielder, figured in one of the most sensational double plays ever seen here. Running back on what looked like a three-base hit, he snared the batted ball to Baker's shortstop, who then pitched it to Harrington at second, causing the Weiser runner, who was attempting to score on the play, and had rounded third on his way to the plate, Baker also registered another double play, Harrington to Bates to Woolums. Kimbell, umpire, was hit in the jaw by a pitched ball in the seventh and brought to his knees, but he recovered and finished the game. The box score: Weiser..... AB R H PO A E

Boise 5, Ontario 4
ONTARIO—The Boise team continued their winning streak here Sunday by beating Ontario 5 to 4 in a closely contested game. The visitors' work was not up to par, but in hitting and fielding, the Boise team showed to better advantage than the Malheur county entry.

GRANDS AND ERECTED

Everything that can be done to make the tournament a success is being ably taken care of by the Boise polo club. The playing field has been put into first class condition and the fence around it newly painted. Arrangements have been made to take care of at least 6000 people this year. A grandstand has been erected on the west side of the field, which will accommodate a large number of people. Everyone attending the polo tournament this year will have the opportunity of witnessing first class polo. Each team is confident of winning the championship and rivalry will be at a high pitch when the first ball is thrown.

DR. G. M. WATERHOUSE, C. G. TAYLOR, O. T. CURTIS, LYLE WOOD, W. J. ELLIOTT, ROY LOYCE AND R. P. McANALLY were among the local Masons who attended one of the sessions of the Grand Chapter and Grand Commandery held at Boise the last four days of last week. They will be in charge of the polo tournament this year.

TRAFFIC

TRAFFIC on the main highway between Boise and the capital city was heavy today. The road is in good condition and the weather is favorable for travel. The traffic is expected to continue to be heavy for the next few days.

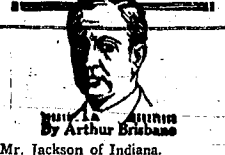

PRIZE

A PRIZE of $5000 will be awarded to the winner of the polo tournament.
