Friday Night Only

The Wrong Bottle

[Eclair]

This was not a bottle of Blue Ribbon but a bottle of poison sent to a sick person by a drug clerk by mistake. This is one of the most intensely dramatic photo-plays ever presented, excellently acted and photographed.

Mid-Winter Trip to Los Angeles From Pasadena

This delightful travelogue gives us the mid-winter sights seen by the tourist who takes the motor trip between the two cities in Southern California. Also a trip to Mount Lowe. The motor carries the traveler out of Pasadena by Marengo Ave. lined with pepper trees and then through a park like country. You also see some tremendous mountain views, an ostrich farm, an alligator farm and a pigeon farm where you will see a half million birds being fed. Very instructive and entertaining.

An Indian Maid's Elopement

[Bison]

An unusually strong portrayal of the Indian character, photographed amid natural and fitting backgrounds, a sure winner.

Friday and Saturday Night

New York City Street Cleaning

[Edison]

Demonstrating in the most interesting form the new methods of cleaning a great city. A picture of great interest to every community.

The Lost Kitten

[Edison]

A little story of a lost kitten, a rather bashful young man and a very sweet little girl. Just when he thought he had lost in the game of love, the kitten acted as Cupid. The Lost Kitten is a "FIND" for you, and it will scramble straight to the heart of every spectator. Don't Miss it.

A Western Kimona

[Essanay]

Another roaring "Alkali Ike" comedy in which laughter runs rampant. One of the funniest photo-plays of the season—a sure fire feature comedy. "Alkali" comes home, one day and finds a note left by his wife saying "I have gone to Pocatello to have my kimona cut out." He is horrified when he meets her and she tells him she has her kimona in a box under her arm. You see "Alkali" didn't happen to know what a kimona was. Well, you'll have to see this one. It's a sure cure for the blues.
