Picturesque House In Which Charles Dickens Once Lived

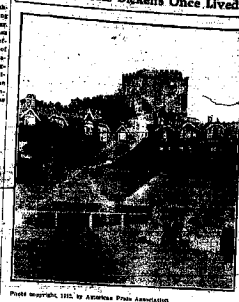

Photo copyright, 1912, by American Press Association

BOARDMAN, one of the quaint English watering places, has been a favorite residence of popular British novelists. George Eliot, Wilkie Collins and Charles Dickens spent much of their time there. A house which has sheltered so different types by the last two has recently been made famous as "Peggotty's House" by Dickens' admirers, who are now contributing to the purchase fund. The house is marked by a commemorative tablet and a bust of Dickens, which may be distributed in the photograph. R.

"WILL WE FORGET?"

Under the foregoing caption the Prairie Echo says:

"Council produced exactly 13 candidates on the Democratic and Republican parties by shows by the list published elsewhere in this issue. If event occurred in the county had brought forth as many candidates according to their population as Council did the list would have contained about 35. When the effort was being made by the Council people to divide Washington county, one of the principle reasons advanced by them in support of division was that Weiser had always "bagged" the offices and did not give the upper part of the county a fair deal. We admit this assertion of Council's opponents as true but we also admit Adams county was dry, those same Council people had not interfered in any way and announced that "to the victors belong the spoils." And remembered the appointment of Council people to all the offices in the new county, thus proving themselves to be happy hobo than our Weiser friends, when they had denounced. And now as their terms of office are about to expire we find them all with the exception of two, coming back with a flock of aliases for another term at the big counter.

Adams county was created not because it was necessary, or essential to the welfare of the people of the county, but for the purpose of benefiting the people of Council by locating the county seat there and for the sinking jobs for a good share of the population of the town. Truly can school the Weiser ring was the ery of the rabble to direct the attention of the people in another direction.

Are the people or the county at the coming election going to policy the rine rule by which the county was created and has since been governed?

Are they going to vote the head that stands them?

Are they going to forget?

We think not!"

The Signal gives space to the Echo's article, not because we wish to join in a crusade against Council's to make the people of Adams county, but because a truth is stated which as a matter of fair play should be spread as far if possible. The people through-out Weiser and Weiser people. Since the writer has come to Weiser he has heard a great deal about Weiser "bagging" everything, but much of the talk has been prompted by those who had selfish interests to promote and not because of any real grievance against the people of this city." We do not say there has not been isolated cases of wrong but we know that for two years at least there has been no discrimination on the part of Weiser people to deal entirely with our neighbors in the upper country. Weiser needs them and they need Weiser. The greater the development in the upper country the larger Weiser will be and the larger Weiser grows the better the market for the products of the valley to the north, and that changes the commodities the people there are supplied, is true. There should be no room for a division, only in the fact the people of the upper country are getting up all feeling by blaming Weiser in acting the "bogy" as it has done on their development.

Since the division of the county there are three still in Washington county who are continually trying to foster sectional feelings. If the people of the upper portion of the county will take time to investigate they will find that nine times out of ten the accusation is made against Weiser because of some "fancied" neglect on the part of the present standing. Let Senator Gooding, Governor McDaniel, Herman Nelson or the same the world over, and the people of Weiser are no worse or better than the people of other sections of the county. We are tired of the fault with our neighbors if we want to get ahead it has to be done by ourselves pulling in one direction and not pulling in two if we intend to do anything profitable in the way of financial standing. Let us cooperate for one and for the truth come to the surface even at this late day.

Who Is Fooling the Money?

Who has been particular fault find with John M. Haines as a matrimonial candidate, but we do believe his management and supporters could better serve their candidate by endeavoring to smother the Republican electors that he is the person who instead of trying to convince them that his opponents are not.

Governor Moriarty administration has proved probably as free from dirty acts as his predecessor's or successor's.

Nearly all this "Whoop and Hurrah" relative to Morrison's connection with the Hayward and Pettibone case was instituted by the Statesman.

Some months ago that newspaper refused to further embarass with the smaller country papers.

Notwithstanding why the Statesman's long story of some weeks ago came to hand in the effort that "boomerang" had paid the sender, for the Statesman for certain length of time. On the same mail came the Gooding county story heavily marked.

Those many of the smaller papers received the story in full as well as commented freely on the matter editorially.

We do not mean to say that the motives of some of those papers can be justified for a few words' subscription to the Statesman but we do know that it was a bid for it.

Why paid the subscription we do not know; for will leave the reader to guess.

Democratic Committeeman visit one time in Weiser and refused to have advertising on the subject except as a for-faith campaign argument.

Democratic committeemen visit Weiser any and advertising the return of Mr. Morrison but we do feel that he is not getting a square deal and that the objection raised against him is not based on any good and sufficient ground.—Boise County Republican.

Flathead Wants to Come to Idaho in Search of Nut Crops.

A nut enthusiast in a middle west corn state wants to come to Idaho and start a nut grove.

This nutty person's epistle to Moses as the founder of the nut industry in the Gem state has written to the state horticultural department and asked for data regarding the proposition for a nut farm. He is evidently no authority on the kinds of nuts that will mature, for he asks a number of questions regarding the soil and weather and queries especially as to their adaptability as the successful and profitable promulgation of nuts. If a big nut is planted a lot of nut trees in his grove which will add to the scenic beauty of the valley. Nut trees, he says, are a delicacy of great commercial value, are really beautiful.

The eastern nutbit picks on favorites in the nut growing business, and not unjustly, for he says
